We appreciate all kind of contributions to make your video life easier! Have a good dayQ: Python 3.x, importing pandas, not in an initializer? I have a much bigger issue than I've asked this question to, but I thought this might be a smart bet. Here's the full story: I'm writing a card game that uses the SimpleLands and Other Lands packs. I have a Python package called lands.py in a folder on a network drive that a bunch of people can access that contains all the land data in a simple format. I have a python script called landparser.py that reads the lands.csv data from this folder and uses pandas to combine it into a unified list of land types and their info. These scripts run fine as stand-alone utilities, but when I package them as
